NEWS RELEASE

For immediate release: October 10, 2018

Tom Parker, CEO of Snoqualmie Valley Hospital accepts position of CEO of Mammoth Hospital in Mammoth Lakes, CA.

Tom Parker, CEO of Snoqualmie Valley Hospital (SVH) communicated to the Hospital's board of commissioners that he is resigning his position as of November 24, 2018.

In Parker's communication to the board and Hospital staff he said, "It has been an honor to lead and serve as COO and CEO of Snoqualmie Valley Hospital these past eight years and to serve the thousands of residents who depend on our hospital and clinics. It has been my great privilege to work with you, an exceptionally dedicated and skilled team of clinicians, support staff, managers, and executives who provide compassionate, technically skilled, and highly satisfying services to our patients, their family members, and the public. I am proud of what we have accomplished as a team to assure the provision of safe and effective healthcare services and the long-term viability of the Hospital. I know that Snoqualmie Valley Hospital will continue to thrive as an increasingly indispensable provider of healthcare services in the region."

Parker said that the position at Mammoth Hospital affords him the opportunity to lead another high quality thriving organization and one that is larger with a broader scope of services. He said that it also brings him and his wife closer to family in California, Utah, and Arizona.

SVH Board President, Dariel Norris said, "Personally, it has been my pleasure to work with CEO, Tom Parker. I appreciate that he engages each commissioner between Board meetings to hear our concerns and goals for Snoqualmie Valley Hospital. Our Hospital is in a better position as a result of his strong leadership and partnership with the Board of Commissioners as well as the Executive Staff. Tom Parker will be missed. I wish him the very best in his new Executive Position."
